The editors at artnet News searched New York City high and low for the most exciting, bizarre, and thought-provoking gallery exhibitions this fall. From Chelsea to the Lower East Side, we've got you covered.

Catherine Sullivan's latest film concerns ambiguous labor, not included in one's job description and unpaid, and how to resist doing it, preserving personal boundaries. Her influences, according to the exhibition description, include "left-wing dance from the 1930s, social justice curricula, private testimony and academic sociology."
